Wendy C. Wright Senior Vice President – Operations and IT

When Virginia Banker's Bank opened in January 1987, Wendy Wright unlocked the door. She was one of three original employees, and joins CBB in celebrating a 25th anniversary this year. She has seen many changes since the early days, including our name change to Community Bankers' Bank ("CBB") in 1996, along with many technological advances such as imaged cash letters and remote deposit capture.

Prior to opening CBB, Wendy was employed for over 10 years by two Virginia community banks. Over the course of 25 years, Wendy has been tasked with multiple responsibilities at CBB, among them human resources and financial reporting duties. Even with these various responsibilities, she has always been the driving force behind our Operations Department. Some of the highlights of Wendy's tenure at CBB include: initiating foreign services, putting CBLink into operations, automating the domestic wire transfer system, setting up the FRB Excess Balance Accounts program, and more recently, implementing bank-wide server virtualization. Wendy enjoys working with community bank clients and assisting them with the changes and challenges they face in today's financial world.

Many of our clients and prospects have had the opportunity to meet Wendy in person or spend some time chatting on the phone with her, but some things about her you might not know. Wendy was born and raised in Central Virginia and chose to make her permanent home here. When she is in the mood for some rest and relaxation, her favorite vacation destination is the Outer Banks of North Carolina. In fact, her family enjoys the sand and surf so much, they make it an annual get-away. In 2001, Wendy became a cancer survivor. Since then, she has participated in Relay for Life and has continued to support various other Pink Ribbon charities
